

Affiliate Disclosure

On our website, Organized Home Office, we evaluate or mention products and services. If we believe a product or service is good and the merchant selling it provides an affiliate program, we have no problem referring others to it via an affiliate link, which means we may receive a commission or other kind of income if you purchase the product we promote.

Certain items and links to products/services are affiliate links, and any purchases you make may result in a commission for us. We are paid to give our honest opinion on products and/or services on occasion. You will not be charged any additional fees as a result of this. These items and services are mentioned because we believe in them and wish to assist you in improving your life. We only endorse products or services that we believe will benefit you, and this helps us to continue to provide ongoing helpful hints and reviews.

Of course, full disclosure: Organized Home Office is a for-profit business, which means we do make money from it.

Specific Programs:

- Amazon Services LLC Associates Program Disclosure

Organized Home Office is also a participant in the Amazon Services LLC Associates Program, an affiliate advertising program designed to provide a means for us to earn advertising fees by linking to Amazon.com and affiliated websites. To make things easier for all of us, assume that any links to products or services are affiliate links and that we will be compensated if you buy something. Affiliate links are disclosed in accordance with the USA Federal Trade Commission's standards.

If you have any further questions, feel free to contact us.

Thanks!